

FINALRedburn makes senior Telecoms research hire

London, 7th January 2019 – Redburn (Europe) Ltd, the independent equity research and execution firm, today announces that Steve Malcolm, formerly a partner at Arete Research, will be joining the company as a senior analyst in the Telecoms research team.

Steve will be working closely with Nick Delfas and team to build on the success of Redburn's highly-rated European Telecoms franchise.

Steve brings over 20 years of experience in Telecoms research having previously held senior positions at Evolution Securities, Deutsche Bank Global Equities and Greenwich NatWest.

This is the latest in a series of appointments to the Redburn team following the hires of Mike Seigne, Russell Quelch, James Kebell and Simon Baker.

Commenting on Steve Malcolm's appointment, Robert Miller, Head of Research Services at Redburn said: "We are delighted to welcome Steve to the Redburn family. His market expertise will be an exciting addition to our already experienced and highly-rated Telecoms team.

Nick Delfas, Partner and Head of Telecoms research: "At Redburn, one of our core beliefs is that robust and high-quality independent research will never go unnoticed and it's the best way to serve our clients. I have long admired Steve's uncompromising style and keen eye for telling details. His wealth of experience will further strengthen our team and help us build on our track record of delivering quality research to our clients.

Steve Malcolm added: "Redburn has established itself as a world class research provider. I feel privileged to be joining the company and a team with such a strong reputation."

Steve will be based in Redburn's London office and will join Redburn on 30th January 2019.
